

THE NOMAD

DOUBLE INDIA PALE ALE

PROFILE

A vibrant and juicy aroma is the story of the DIPA. Fresh citrus, hints of dried apricot and peach all come through as the full-body and soft mouthfeel complement the nuanced hop flavors. It is unfiltered, a bit hazy, and the perfect mate for roaming.

The new school of Double or Imperial IPAs is surprisingly easy drinking, despite being defined by their higher alcohol content. The Nomad has a sunshine yellow hue along with a hazy appearance but maintains a very light impression on the palate. The flavors come through with all its tropical notes and then finishes with a noticeable but restrained bitterness.

TASTING NOTES

The Nomad has big aroma that brings the breadth of “new school” hop characteristics. Especially as the beer warms, the apricot, peach fruit, and sweet tangerine notes evolve. The appearance is opaque with a beautiful golden hue.

Easy drinking, especially for the style, this beer’s delicious character can belie its potency as the boozy notes hide under all that hop aroma and flavor. The finish of the brew has a nice, medium-full body and crisp finish that does not linger too long, but instead makes the drinker curious about the next sip.
